TONOPAH DOUGHBOY REPLIES TO YOUNG TONOPAH DEVIL DOG

George E. Ryan, battalion sergeant major, infantry headquarters, 5th division, quartered at Luxembourg, writes the Bonanza in reply to Sergeant William T. Cuddy of the U. S. marines, an extract from whose letter appeared in this paper last December. Sergeant Ryan encloses a clipping from the Bonanza containing the objectionable statement and makes a stinging answer in defense of the army. George Ryan will be remembered as a former employee of the Tonopah postoffice who resigned to enlist. He is a son of W. J. Ryan, of Tonopah, and a nephew of the former state mine inspector, deceased. The letter which explains itself is as follows:

Hq. 5th Trains, 5th Division, Esch, Luxembourg, January 20, 1919.
Mr. W. W. Booth, Editor and Manager of the Tonopah Daily Bonanza, Tonopah, Nevada.
Dear Sir:—While reading your valuable paper, dated December 5th, 1918, I came across an article wherein First Sergeant William T. Cuddy of company B, marines, made

SPANISH BELT HOIST
REACHES TONOPAH

R. M. Hampton, the new general superintendent of the Spanish Belt mine at Barcelona, came in last evening by stage from the property and is enthusiastic over the possibilities of the mine which he believes will develop into one of the greatest producers in Nevada. The proposed development of the Spanish Belt was fully decided upon before the lamentable death of David H. Walker, whose successor finds everything in splendid shape to continue the new hoist to be installed arrived here today and will be sent out to the camp as soon as the road conditions warrant moving the heavy load. One of the first objectives to be attacked will be the San Pedro shaft where a crosscut will be driven to a point under the San Pedro underground stope where there is a considerable showing of high-grade ore. The company will send out several shipments from this stope.

THE DIVIDE DIVIDEND
GOING 200 FT. DEEPER

A. S. Walberg, president of the Divide Dividend Mining company, has authorized Manager E. A. Cullinan to sink another 200 feet if he deems it necessary in order to cut the ore body of the district. When sinking on the deeper shaft is begun the work will be done with two or three shifts as may be found profitable to use in getting the distance. All work is now confined to the crosscut which is out 725 feet from the shaft at a depth of 268 feet. The face shows a change in formation and the assays are improving but the values are spotted and it may be that the dip of the vein at this point carries it below the present workings of the Dividend. The values are better at the bottom of the drift than at the top. The company has an electric hoist which has not been placed in position as the gas engine is doing well and it was thought better to hold the electric hoist to be lowered if it was decided to sink a winze. Mr. Walberg arrived today from San Francisco to inspect the progress made under the direction of Mr. Cullinan and expressed himself well pleased with the situation urging him to make all possible haste in getting into the mineralized zone.

the statement that "Any fish could hold down an officer's billet in the army; but it takes a real man to hold down a private's job in the marines."

I have been a resident of Tonopah for five years, and am also a small part of the vast American army, and having been in personal contact with these so-called fish for the past twenty months, I take exception to this marine's remarks, and would like to say a few words in their defense. I scarcely think Mr. Cuddy realized at the time that he was making such a strong statement, or that it would be open to contradiction. He admits in his letter that his chances of seeing the front line trenches were very poor, owing to the fact that other regiments were ahead of his own. I am wondering at this moment what he has been doing since war was declared that he was not fortunate enough to get into an organization that went over the top. Perhaps he, like many more, had the misfortune to get into the game too late. Speaking from the standpoint of one who "has been there," and who is also an admirer of the many excellent qualities of the marines, and as a believer in the theory of a "hoist for everybody," for those who went over the top and those who did not, I do not like his assumption that the marines are ahead of other units of our great army.

The organizations that gave the marines their reputation were the 5th and 6th regiments brigaded with the 9th and 23rd regiments of infantry, regular, belonging to the 2nd division (regular) at Chateau Thierry during the days of July 15-18, 1918, where the marines with other organizations of our army did wonderful work, too, account censor regulations, the marines was the only unit mentioned in press dispatches.

On July 17th, at Chateau Thierry, the marines in the thick of the fray were outfanked by the enemy, the bulldog tenacity and stamina of the 9th and 23rd infantry regiments came to their rescue, and due to the fact that the regular army carries no press agents, and the inhibition of censorship regulations, the incident, like many others, was never brought before the notice of our people at home. The marines at the time of this withdrawal from the front lines had total casualties of 60 per cent of their effectives. The marines were then filled to quota from replacement depots, the personnel of which came from all other branches of the service, arrived in the St. Mihiel sector, and, with other organizations, participated in wiping out that salient in the first all-American drive, September 12-16, inclusive, 1918. For the benefit of those who might erroneously gather from press reports that the marines were the "whole show" over here, it is worthy to note that at no time has their excellent organization had more than 10,000 men in the front line while at the very hour that the armistice went into effect, the American army had 240,000 men on the front line in the sector north of Verdun to Sedan. And when it is recalled that over 60 per cent of them were replaced with regulars, draftees, and national guardsmen after their first encounter with the enemy, it can easily be seen that they in reality played a very minor part. Some of the boys over here, and some who went home, have proudly left the impression with their friends over there that all combatant troops who arrived over here went over the top. Mr. Cuddy's assertion that any fish could hold down an officer's billet in the army, must, therefore, be placed in the same silly category. The records of our justly famed generals, Pershing, Bullard, Leggett, and others, as well as the silent yet eloquent testimonial of distinguished service cross awards, down to the smallest buck private in the ranks, are scarcely deserving of the appellation of "fish." The American army won this great world war, and they know too well the nature of the titanic struggle ever to credit for a moment that it was won under the leadership of any "fish." I admire the marines, but I can hardly give Mr. Cuddy credit for really being one; perhaps he is one of those who live on a reputation made by his comrades of the 5th and 6th marines. Being back in the S. O. S., never hearing a gun fired, leaves mighty erroneous impressions at times.

The we may all be fish, up here at the front, the fish without fins or tails made the history in this war of which America is so justly proud. Sincerely yours,
GEORGE E. RYAN,
Battalion Sergeant Major, Infantry, Hq. 5th Trains, 5th Division.

AMUSEMENTS

VIRGINIA PEARSON IN THRILLING ROLE

A tremendous play of a mother who fights for the honor of her unborn child is given in "The Liar," Virginia Pearson's latest photodrama, which will be the attraction at the Miller today. It is a play that strikes right down to the depths of every mother's heart, and in enacting the big problem that is given in this production Miss Pearson demonstrates that she is a star of rare ability. In "The Liar" Miss Pearson portrays the role of a girl who is caught in marriage by a scheming, unscrupulous father's plan. When the girl repulses the man and is about to wed another, the superintendent confronts her with the accusation that she has a negro strain in her blood. She laughs at him but months later when she is about to become a mother, he confronts her husband with papers which purport to be proof of his assertion. How the young bride follows the adventurer and proves his charge, forms a thrilling climax. Added to the program will be a Mutt and Jeff comedy.

Tonopah's William Russell, the big athlete, screen star, in "Hearts or Diamonds," a picture that everyone will like. Tom Moore will be here Thursday in "Thirty a Week," and his comic comedy, with lots of action.

STRIKE ON BELLEHELEN

compressor is installed work will be started in drifting on the ledge in order to reach the shoot now developed on the 2000 and 70-foot levels. The company last week shipped to the West End mill a trial shipment of second grade ore, which gave returns of $8.24 per ton. The high-grade ore showing on the 70-foot level has been opened up for a distance of about ten feet, and at present appears to be making into a large body of high-grade ore. At the present time this high-grade shoot is about 18 inches wide. The company expects to place on the market at once 200,000 shares of treasury stock at 5 cents per share. The stock is not accessible, and the money realized from the sale of the stock will be used in the development of the property. William Forman is president of the company and F. A. Burnham, secretary. The sale of the treasury stock is being handled by Charles S. Sprague & Co., Tonopah.

Don't forget the big Washington birthday dance at the Airdome Saturday night after the Red Cross speaking.

NOTICE
The price of treasury stock will be advanced to twelve and one-half cents per share on Thursday, February 20th, 1919, at noon. No treasury stock will be sold at a lower price after that date. Only a small portion of the offering at ten cents per share remains unsubscribed.
